

I am opposed to allowing the use of cellphones, VoIP phones, or other voice communication on flights. I am opposed not from a technical or safety issue but from obtrusiveness issue. Allowing this would create a cacophony of noise having a large number of people communicating concurrently. People on cell phones act unaware of the volume of their voice or the content of the conversation.

Sincerely

Robert P. Anderson